ED questions Rohit Pawar for 11 hrs; truth will prevail, says Sule

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
MUMBAI, JANUARY 24

THE ENFORCEMENT Directorate on Wednesday night released Nationalist Congress Party legislator Rohit Pawar from its office in Mumbai after questioning him for nearly 11 hours over the alleged Maharashtra State Cooperative Bank scam.

Summoned to the ED office in the morning, the NCP MLA was released at 10.10 pm. He has been called again on February 1.

"I wholeheartedly thank everyone who waited here for the whole day. We have decided not to bend in front of anyone and I am going to follow the same," he said after his release, adding that he would continue to co-operate with the officials. He addressed party workers from the window at the first floor of NCP office.

"During the 12-hour interrogation, I never felt tired because you all were chanting and sloganising for me. I was instead getting re-energised. When our leader Sharad Pawar came here and waited for whole day, it was clear that Pawar saheb supports the one who fights and not the one who quits," Rohit said.

"We all have decided that we will fight for the pride and rights of the people of Maharashtra. I have worked honestly in my business and only then joined politics. Just because I am cooperating with the probe does not mean I will tolerate any unjust actions against us or our workers," he said.

"No matter how much Delhi tries, we have decided not to bow down in front of Delhi. We have decided to fight and our fight is to win," he added.

In the morning, before entering the ED office, Rohit Pawar paid tributes at the statue of Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj at Vidhan Bhavan and carried with him a book on Maharashtra's first chief minister late Yashwantrao Chavan and a copy of the Constitution.

Meanwhile, hundreds of NCP workers along with MLAs and other leaders had gathered outside the party office in support of Rohit. NCP chief Sharad Pawar was present in the party office throughout the 11 hours when Rohit was questioned.

Baramati Lok Sabha MP Supriya Sule, MLAs Sunil Bhusara and Sandip Kshirsagar accompanied Rohit till the ED office. Party workers had put up banners and posters in support of Rohit Pawar in Ballard Piers area in south Mumbai where the ED office is located.

"This is the period of struggle for us. We will fight it out and I am sure that the truth will prevail. Rohit Pawar is fighting for the rights of youth. The people have love and affection towards him. The data from Parliament shows that 95% of actions from the central agencies are against those from the opposition. Therefore, the notice to Rohit was not unexpected," said Sule. She added that since Rohit is working for the poor, farmers and working class, certain powers are bound to be unhappy with him and this notice could be a part of the revenge politics.

KOTA: A 19-year-old NEET aspirant from Uttar Pradesh allegedly died by suicide by hanging himself from a ceiling fan in his hostel room here, police said on Wednesday. It is the first case of suspected student suicide in the coaching hub this year.

The incident happened on Tuesday and the police have recovered the body from the victim's room in a hostel in Kota.

Kota Hostel Association president Naveen Mittal said the fan in the victim's room was not equipped with anti-suicide device in violation of guidelines set up for hostels in the district.

Circle Officer of Jawahar Nagar area DSP Bhawani Singh said the deceased was identified as Mohammed Jaid (19), a resident of Moradabad district in Uttar Pradesh.

Pitch's turning point takes backseat to Bazball

VENKATA KRISHNAB
HYDERABAD, JANUARY 24

THE ARRIVAL of Bazball and the fixation around it means all the usual noise that comes up in the lead up to a Test in India is rather quiet. So much so that when Rohit Sharma and Ben Stokes fronted up to the media on Wednesday, there was just one question about the pitch on offer for the first Test at the Rajiv Gandhi International Cricket Stadium.

"It looks good," was all that Rohit had to offer. Not a word more or less. The attention was understandably more on Bazball and whether it could work in these parts, an unchartered territory as far as Stokes & Co. are concerned.

They may not have spoken publicly about it, but the 22 yards remained the sole focus for both teams during their training session. By naming three spinners in their XI – Jack Leach, Rehan Ahmed and debutant Tom Hartley – to go with the sole sheer pace of Mark Wood, England clearly gave away their reading of the pitch.

With the temperature being in the mid-20s throughout January because of winter, the pitch hasn't been exposed to much sunlight. With moisture being a constant factor, the pitch preparations for the Test began on January 18 with BCCI's panel of curators Ashish Bhowmick and Taposh Chatterjee overseeing it. And the bright sun shine meant the pitch was kept under covers for the first time – preventing it from breaking up.

While the pitch will take turn is a given, the question is how soon and how much. Since the Test is being played towards the end of winter, and less exposure to sunlight to go with presence of moisture means, even India aren't entirely sure of how this one would behave. On Wednesday, head coach Rahul Dravid made multiple visits to the square, which predominantly is made of black soil.

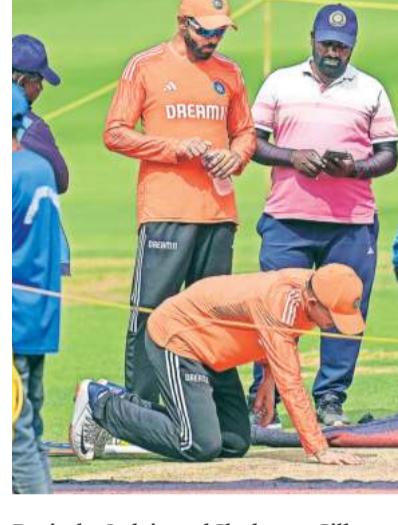

It is understood that since there is already a lot of moisture, there hasn't been much watering as it could take time for the pitch to break. The moisture level is what is keeping everyone guessing. It is learnt that if there isn't enough sunshine and the moisture level continues to remain the same, then the pitch here may not break as quickly as it did during the series against Australia last year. There are also indications of this being on the slower side that could nullify the Bazball to an extent.

However, what is guaranteed is there are enough patches, especially on the good length area on either side of the stumps that suggests the spinners would come into play early on. In essence, what is on offer is a designer track that one normally expects in these parts, more so after the WTC came into picture.

Kuldeep, third spinner?

While England have finalised their XI and have revealed it, India too have locked theirs, but haven't made it public. The only deliberation was around the third spinner's slot, especially given how much Kuldeep Yadav has evolved as a bowler over the past 12 months. Against an opposition that can go into an all out attack mode against the spinners, skipper Rohit Sharma said how Kuldeep brings an X-factor, especially in conditions like this.

"Kuldeep gives you a certain X-factor with his bowling. You've seen how well he's been bowling of late. Especially the wicket, if it has bounce, or if it doesn't have bounce, Kuldeep becomes a factor in those types of conditions as well because he has got superb variations," Rohit said.

Patel's case

The only reason why Kuldeep hasn't managed to get as many matches on home soil where the pitches have been helpful to the spinners is, they have Axar Patel to go with R Ashwin and Ravindra Jadeja. Prior to the series, India were tempted to combine Kuldeep with Ashwin and Jadeja, but the unavailability of Virat Kohli and the brittle middle-order means they may have to wait for a bit. It was with this reason in mind that they even made Kuldeep play the opening round of Ranji Trophy before he joined the T20I squad for the series against Afghanistan.

While Axar had exceptional returns when England toured here last, in the last home series against Australia, he didn't contribute much with the ball and picked up only three wickets in four Tests. Against England's batting line-up, Kuldeep seemed every bit a tempting prospect, particularly given the numerous variations and tricks he has up his sleeve.

However, the 264 runs Axar scored with the bat against Australia that put him in the top three run-getters in the series, is not something India are keen to overlook in Kohli's absence. And with all signs pointing to a turner, Axar, like Jadeja would keep both edges interested as England struggled to pick his straighter ones last time.

"Axar with his all-round ability, giving us that batting depth, the consistency that he has shown playing in these conditions in Test cricket also is an important factor for us. It was a bit of a headache for us to decide who it was going to be. I'm not going to say who it is but it was a challenge for us to make that decision. We know we've got quality around our spin-bowling department, which is a good sign. When you've got quality around your team, when there's a headache to make your playing XI, that's a good sign," Rohit added.

Were you surprised by how quickly McCullum put the norms to bed and brought the aggressive approach to Tests?

It did not surprise me too much because working with him at KKR, I realised that he comes in with a positive attitude. He is someone who is always looking at the positives of who is playing and how to get the maximum out of him. It is a route he took all along as a player and as a coach. No matter where he goes to coach, you will see that side being the most aggressive version of themselves.

INTERVIEW: DINESH KARTHIK 'Bazball isn't about 6-7 runs an over, it is about being your best'

Did that strike you straightaway?

Yes. I remember, at KKR we had a lot of problems when it came to bowling at the death. It can be a ground where we could end up giving a lot of runs. If I remember it correctly, we were among the most expensive at the death. Instead of addressing that death-over issue as all teams tend to give runs in that period, he wanted us to go harder with the bat upfront and put a much bigger score so that it gives more cushion to defend. So he always comes up with different approaches.

Unlike the Australia series last year, there is not much noise around the pitch. Is it a sign of England taking the pitch out of their minds?

In many ways yes. During the preparations, he has made them aware 'look, this is going to be hard. It is India and it is going to turn and let us not expect anything different. But we will get there and put as many runs on board in the most aggressive way possible. That will give us the best chance of success. If we are trying to do that and there is a method that is working for us, let us stay true to that.'

You worked with the England Lions, who too employed a similar aggressive approach against India A. Was there a conscious effort to stick to it at all levels?

Look, the messaging is clear top down. You go to their set up and everyone is trying to play an aggressive brand of cricket... be it County cricket or England Lions.

I don't see them doing any blind slogging. Their players have toured here and know what to expect. What they will try and do is, be aggressive and put India under pressure.

There are still apprehensions whether Bazball would work in India. Your thoughts?

In the past they have resorted to slogging

If we are trying to do that and there is a method that is working for us, let us stay true to that.'

How crucial it is for England to put the bad days behind and compete again?

For any touring team to India that is going to be the biggest challenge. How you are able to understand that on days which don't go your way, how to come back and start afresh. With the spinners India have, there are bound to be challenges. That is where they have to buckle down and come out and play their best game that they have done for the last 18 months.

India are walking into an unknown. Do you think turners will still give them an advantage?

I do think of one method India will employ. They will look to play on slightly slower pitches, which will stop England from playing shots and make it harder. They will try to play on slower pitches because when there is pace on the ball, England will do better. But when the pitches are slower, I think patience will come into the game. At times that could help India.

England leave their Ferrari in garage

JANUARY 24

JAMES ANDERSON would begin his sixth Test trip to India as a passenger. The 41-year-old would be missed, for the art he possesses and the fear he provokes.

His omission when Ben Stokes named the eleven would have induced gasps and smirks – conventional wisdom suggests your most experienced cricketer should start in the first Test of your toughest series of the season. But the England of Stokes and Brendon McCullum does not travel the travelled paths.

Stokes sees it this way: Mark Wood's pace could make the difference. The 90-mph thunderbolts could blast stumps, batter morale, and provoke fear. Stokes would patiently explain: "When you go with one seamer, you look at the impact you want out of that seamer. What Woody brings with his high pace, he is a real impact bowler if we can get the ball swinging, him bowling in the 90s mph with a reverse-swinging ball will be difficult to play against."

All of these are true. When his body holds up, Wood is a fearsome proposition, capable of shivering speed, can make the nature of surfaces irrelevant, and was one of the chief architects of the series win in Pakistan. He has the gift that Anderson does not possess – speed, which even peak Anderson did not have. With fast bowlers likely to be used in short, snappy bursts, Wood could be a handful.

Going against pedigree

But in omitting Anderson, they have disregarded the worth of an ageless genius with colossal experience, who has been a shining light in the brightest of England's hours in this country. The wobble-seam destruction in Chennai, the reverse-swing masterclass in Kolkata, the conventional-swing treat in Mumbai (2006) are but a few instances of Anderson shaping and swinging the match to his will. India is no place for medium-pace swing bowlers, but his numbers, 34 wickets at 29 in 13 Tests, though not golden, are glittering, instructive of his willingness to add more layers to his craft.

James Anderson will be on the bench with Mark Wood being the only frontline fast bowler. Reuters

From the painful lessons of 2008, he chiseled his reverse-swinging art and produced a vital cutting edge in England's series-winning cause in 2012. From the setbacks of 2016, he returned with a refined wobble-seam dimension that confounded India in the first Test of the 2021 tour. In a series dominated by spinners, he grabbed eight wickets at 15.87. And on all of these tours, he bowled with an economy rate of less than three runs.

On the last trip, only spinner Jack Leach bowed more overs than him for England, and he was the most economical bowler (1.92). Despite a fallow Ashes series (on decks with negligible swing and a slip-cordon with greasy palms), his guiles remain undiminished. Between the Ashes and the India tour, Anderson underwent a rigorous physical conditioning programme.

"I still feel like I've got a lot to offer this team. I would not still be doing what I'm doing if I didn't feel like that. I still feel like I have got the skills to win England games of cricket," he would tell The Telegraph.

Full of tricks

As much as his skills, Anderson imposes himself psychologically on batsmen. More than the pace of Wood, the movement that Anderson could extract with the new ball, both conventional and with a wobble seam, could torment India's top three. South Africa's seamers, albeit in different conditions, confounded Yashasvi Jaiswal with new-ball movement; Anderson has in the past troubled Shubman Gill; his duels with Virat Kohli are storied; he has dismissed Rohit Sharma just twice, while Sharma would be wary of Anderson's guiles.

Not to forget the wisdom of 183 Test matches and the wealth of 690 Test wickets. Without him, England's bowlers are left with an experience of 67 Tests and 225 wickets.

In that sense, not picking Anderson is perhaps anti-Bazball, in not trusting your strengths and packing the eleven with three spinners, of whom one is a debutant, and the other one Test old. It clearly betrays a lack of confidence in their second spinner (plus the handy Joe Root). It could even be a sign of panic. Even if Stokes and McCullum stand validated after the Test, Anderson will be missed.

TUSHAR BHADURI

NEW DELHI, JANUARY 24

ENGLAND CRICKETER Shoaib Bashir has finally got an India visa even though the travel formalities were completed too late for the youngster to make his debut in the first Test starting in Hyderabad on Thursday. This comes after the British Prime Minister got involved in the matter and there was much outrage in that country's media.

A source in India's Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) confirmed that Bashir had been granted a visa on his return to the United Kingdom. It is also learnt that the reason his application got cleared much later than the other members of the England team was his Pakistani origin.

"There is a process in place and in line with that process, clearance was received earlier this week. Officials at the High Commission in London were in touch with the England and Wales Cricket Board (ECB) to ensure that the player's visa is issued to him immediately. However, the player travelled to Abu Dhabi. By the time he was reached out, he had returned to London. Now since he has submitted his passport today, his visa was issued so that he could join his team," the source said.

"Shoaib Bashir has now received his visa, and is due to travel to join up with the team in India this weekend," an ECB spokesman confirmed. "We're glad the situation has now been resolved."

Bashir's visa application was made in December, along with all of his England teammates, after the touring party was announced. But while the other players received their visas well in time, the 20-year-old had to stay back in the UAE where the England squad had a pre-tour training camp. The off-spinner eventually had to return to England when it was reportedly said that he had to present himself at the Indian High Commission to get a visa.

Leg-spinner Rehan Ahmed, another England player with Pakistani roots, is also in the squad but has been allowed in as he possessed the necessary documents having been one of the standbys for the World Cup held in India in October-November.

With England including all three of the spinners available in their XI for the first Test, it's conceivable that Bashir may have been in with a chance to make his Test debut in Hyderabad. "I find it particularly frustrating," England captain Ben Stokes said. "We announced the squad in mid-December, and now Bash finds himself without a visa to get here."

"I am more frustrated for him. I didn't want this type of situation to be his first experience of what it's like to be in the England Test team. I feel for him."

Stokes' Indian counterpart also expressed sympathy. "I feel for him honestly," said Rohit Sharma. "Unfortunately, I don't sit in the visa office to give you more details on that but hopefully he can make it quickly, enjoys our country and plays some cricket as well. It's not easy for anyone. It could be one of our guys wanting to come to England and being denied."

It's not the first time that Pakistani players or those of Pakistani heritage representing other teams have faced delays in getting visas. The Pakistan team received their visas for travel into India for the World Cup almost at the eleventh hour despite applying well in time. As a result, they had to cancel their pre-tournament camp in the UAE. Journalists from across the border faced the same problems while Pakistani fans were almost totally absent.

Moeen Ali and Saqib Mahmood are England players who have suffered visa delays in the past – Moeen when he was to play in the 2022 Indian Premier League for Chennai Super Kings, and Mahmood who was selected for an England Lions Tour in 2019.

Even Australia batsman Usman Khawaja, also of Pakistani descent, had his visa delayed ahead of the Test series in India a year ago.

The Bashir issue got even the office of British PM Rishi Sunak involved, with a spokesman saying that it was not the first instance of this type and the government expects British citizens to be treated fairly. "I can't speak to the specifics of this case. But more broadly, we have previously raised issues of this kind with the High Commission. We have been clear that we expect India to treat British citizens fairly at all times in its visa processes," said the spokesperson.

"We have previously raised the issues British citizens with Pakistani heritage have experienced. We've raised the issues about their experience of applying for visas with the Indian High Commissioner in London."

The media there had also been incensed, with some arguing that the England and Wales Cricket Board (ECB) should have put its foot down and the team not entered India till Bashir received a visa. "India's name is relentlessly advanced as welcoming hosts – of future Olympics, maybe even a football World Cup. How so, when there is the appearance of discrimination at work in the offices of government?" wrote Martin Samuel in The Times.

NAMIT KUMAR
NEW DELHI, JANUARY 24

AT THE end of the 2022 season, with Rohan Bopanna well into his forties with his career seemingly having seen its peak, there were not many options left in the locker room for the doubles veteran to pick a partner. As he puts it, the collaboration with Australia's Matthew Ebden, at a similar crossroads in his career, was born out of both necessity and a mutual connection.

The duo became an instant hit, not only revitalising their careers, but also taking each other to the summit of the sport. On Wednesday, after their straight-set wins over the sixth-seeded Argentinian pair of Maximo Gonzalez and Andres Molteni, Bopanna became the oldest World No.1 in history at the age of 43, taking the top spot in the men's doubles rankings for the first time in his career. Ebden will be right behind him with the same number of ranking points but fewer tournaments played, when the updated list appears on Monday.

The duo's latest achievements follow a landmark 2023, when they won the Indian Wells Masters and reached four other Masters finals, culminating in the US Open final they lost despite leading by a set.

Bopanna-Ebden may not be the most typical of pairings, but where their playing styles are most complementary, according to the man from Coorg, is the laid-back composure with which they handle pressure situations.

"The biggest strength is that both of us are very calm on court, no matter what the situation is. That comes in with a lot of experience. He's (Ebden) been playing a long time, competing at a high level and winning Grand Slams," Bopanna told reporters from Melbourne on Tuesday. "He understands the value of the right kind of strategy for these kinds of matches. We have been able to combine our mental strengths to win tough, close matches."

And true to form in their latest match at least, the Indo-Australian duo never buckled under pressure in their nearly two-hour-long win that was trickier than the scoreline suggested. It was a fleeting opportunity in the fifth game of the first set on Gonzalez's serve when they found the break. From there, they looked unfazed, suffering just one break point for the rest of the match, consistently applying pressure on their opponents' serves even if they could not fashion another break, and not buckling during the second-set tiebreaker to round out the 6-4, 7-6(5) win.

Keeping at it

Bopanna would become the fourth Indian – after Sania Mirza, Leander Paes and Mahesh Bhupathi – to become doubles World No.1.

Zverev ousts Alcaraz to set up semis clash against Medvedev

ALEXANDER ZVEREV made no mistake with his second chance to close out a win over No.2-ranked Carlos Alcaraz on Wednesday night and moved into an Australian Open semifinal against two-time finalist Daniil Medvedev. The sixth-seeded Zverev was up a break in the third set and missed a chance to serve it out but the Olympic champion didn't blink when he got another chance in the fourth, finishing off a 6-1, 6-3, 6-7(2), 6-4 victory. Alcaraz won Wimbledon last year and was the only player to beat 10-time Australian Open winner Novak Djokovic in a Grand Slam match in 2023. The 20-year-old Spaniard won't get the chance in Australia this time. It was Zverev's first win over a top-5 player at a Grand Slam, and the reward was a spot in the semis for the seventh time at a major.

"Extremely proud of the fact that I have been able to complete my dream," Bopanna would later say. "It has been a little over a decade since I was World No.3. So truly proud to have made it happen."

The Indian, a veteran of more than 40 Davis Cup ties, is full of pride that most of his achievements these days are prefixed with the word 'oldest'. "Nobody reaches the World No.1 ranking without consistency. It's not an overnight achievement. It always comes after successive tournaments, doing well week in, week out. That's what I was able to do in 2023," he said. Bopanna says his late-career resurgence, aided by an adoption of 'Iyengar' yoga and dedicated focus on recovery, has led to more consistent results than he has ever had in his career.

"You need to be disciplined as an athlete," the 43-year-old said. "For example, the first day I landed in Australia was January 4. Since then, till today, every single day I have gone and taken an ice bath, whether it is after practice or a match or whatever. Because at my age, recovery is a major aspect before anything else comes into play. Having access to these things, to physics, the improvements in sports science, all have made a massive difference in my career."

World No.1 ranking in tow, Bopanna will qualify for the Paris Olympics if he keeps his place in the top 10 of the rankings over the next six months, ensuring Indian representation in tennis at the Summer Games that seems unlikely otherwise.

But first, the aim is to win a first men's doubles Grand Slam title. He won the mixed doubles crown at the 2017 French Open, and reached two US Open men's doubles finals, 13 years apart, in 2010 and 2023, but it is an achievement that has eluded him.

Sathiyan focusing on mixed doubles with Manika in Olympics lead-up

ANIL DIAS
PANAJI, JANUARY 24

A WTT Star Contender held in India is where star paddler G Sathiyan would normally want to give his all and take advantage of home comforts to reach the tournament's later rounds and improve his world ranking.

Since 2019, he's been driven to maintain his place among the top 50 in the world, with entering the top 20 his ultimate target.

On Wednesday at the WTT Star Contender Goa at the Peddem Indoor Stadium in Mapusa though, there was a shock in store for him. He's used to being in the main draw of singles events, but low ranking meant he had to go through qualifying after not getting a wildcard. He won his first round of qualifiers, but then suffered a shock 3-2 (7-11, 11-7, 6-11, 11-7, 8-11) loss to World No.194 Vincent Picard in a topsy-turvy match.

Normally, he would be distraught after such a loss, but Sathiyan just shook off the disappointment, came to the practice arena, and asked his mixed doubles partner, India's top-ranked women's paddler Manika Batra, when she was free to train.

"I'm definitely giving more importance to mixed doubles in the lead-up to the Olympics. It's ok that my singles ranking has been going down," said Sathiyan, who has dropped to World No.94.

The Olympics have mixed doubles as a separate category and the Sathiyan-Manika pair, ranked No.11 in the world, is poised to qualify for the Paris Games. Ever since they started playing together in 2021, they've had a phenomenal run, beaten top opponents, and even reached as high as World No.5 at one point. It makes them serious medal contenders in the French capital.

"We have a fair chance and an Olympic medal is an Olympic medal. You win that and it could change the face of the game. I wanted to focus on mixed doubles more where we have a chance in Paris. So Manika and I are trying hard. We aren't in great shape right now but know that one win can change anything. Two wins in Paris and we win a medal. Right now my goal is that," Sathiyan told The Indian Express.

He also has no qualms in admitting that he's choosing mixed doubles over singles as he doesn't stand a chance of medalling in the latter event. "To be honest, it will be very difficult to win a medal in singles. I've participated once, maybe I could go two rounds further but still, you are two to three rounds away from a medal chance. I have to accept it is not as physically strong as the top athletes. My game is not that high yet and so it's better I concentrate on something where I stand a chance at winning," he said.

The conundrum

Though he's nursing knee and lower back injuries and physiotherapists have advised him to rest, Sathiyan says that the World Table Tennis (WTT) calendar has become so packed that taking a break could hurt his chances of qualifying. That's why he is only choosing to play mixed doubles at top-tier events instead of trying to improve his singles ranking.

"I missed a lot of WTT Feeder events – which could've been beneficial for my singles ranking – in favour of playing mixed doubles at Contender and Star Contender events. I had to take a call as my body isn't allowing me to play everything," he says.

While Sathiyan has given up hope of qualifying in singles, Manika is likely to make it to the main draw of the Olympics and has to continue playing top events to keep her spot. It means they barely get any time to train together but Sathiyan says it's imperative they find a way to do so.

"We've barely trained together for a total of 15 days in the last year. We're trying to have a more robust training schedule. It's not that easy because she has a personal coach and I also have mine. We have occasions when we've trained together in Bengaluru, Mumbai and Chennai. Right now, all we can manage is short camps of 4-5 days," he says, adding that having a national centre where they can train anytime would be hugely beneficial for the national team. It would allow them to train with their partners whenever they want rather than having to coordinate with their respective academies and coaches to book training slots.

The only time Sathiyan and Manika get to train together is during tournaments and they try to make the most of it. "It's what the Chinese, Japanese and Korean pairs do and we're trying to do the same because in doubles you require a lot more coordination as we have to alternate our shots," he says.

They've come far taking advantage of Manika's pimped rubber against top players who weren't accustomed to playing against it and returned tamely, with Sathiyan then killing off the point with his ferocious forehand. But he knows that it will take much more than that to win in Paris. They need to work harder and, more importantly, together. The only issue is where and when.

Sharing investor data: FPIs get 7 months to liquidate holdings

HITESH VYAS
MUMBAI, JANUARY 24

FOREIGN PORTFOLIO investors (FPIs) will get seven months to liquidate their holdings if they do not meet the Securities and Exchange Board of India's (SEBI's) January-end deadline to disclose data about their investors, highly-placed sources said.

In August last year, SEBI had issued a circular which asked high-risk FPIs, holding more than 50 per cent of their equity asset under management in a single corporate group or with an overall holding in Indian equity markets of over Rs 25,000 crore, to disclose granular details of all entities holding any ownership, economic interest, or exercising control in the FPI. "There is no immediate deadline or cliff for FPIs to liquidate any holdings," sources said. SEBI had earlier asked FPIs to bring down such exposure by January 29, 2024. If FPIs continue to meet the criteria for enhanced disclosures as of January end, they would have an added 10/30 working days to provide the additional details required, they said. "Even thereafter, if they fail to provide any details, they would have a further 6 months to reduce their holdings," sources added.

According to sources, FPIs which met the criteria for enhanced disclosures as of October 31, 2023 had time till January 2024 end to rebalance their holdings if they so wished. FPIs had sold stocks worth over Rs 27,000 crore between January 17-23 in the cash market, according to stock exchange data. FPIs have offloaded Rs 19,308 crore of local shares on a net basis in January so far, as per data from National Securities Depository Ltd. The SEBI's circular came into effect on November 1, 2023. As per the standard operating procedure issued by FPI custodians on disclosure norms, existing FPIs, which are in breach of the investment limits as on October 31, 2023, would be required to bring down such exposure within 90 days, unless they fall under exempted categories.

Why did govt hike import duty on gold, silver findings?

AANCHAL MAGAZINE
NEW DELHI, JANUARY 24

IN A bid to remove the loophole of a tax arbitrage between different types of gold and silver items, the Finance Ministry on Tuesday raised import duty on gold and silver findings and coins of precious metals to 15 per cent. Higher imports of gold and silver findings — which are small components such as hooks, clasps, clamps, pins, screws used to hold the whole or a part of a piece of jewellery in place — led the government to hike the import duty for them at par with gold and silver bars.

Gold and silver bars faced a 15 per cent import duty, while gold and silver findings attracted 11 per cent import duty. Owing to this duty arbitrage, it was found that there was a significant surge in imports of gold findings in the last two months, a senior government official told The Indian Express.

What has been the change? The hike in import duty on gold and silver findings has come in the form of levy of Agricultural Infrastructure Development Cess (AIDC) of 5 per cent and removing Social Welfare Surcharge (SWS) of 1 per cent. The new duty rates became effective from Tuesday. Earlier, gold and silver findings faced a 10 percent levy of basic customs duty (BCD) and 1 per cent SWS, making the effective duty rate to be 11 per cent. Now, the government has levied AIDC of 5 per cent and removed 1 per cent SWS, while keeping BCD unchanged at 10 per cent and resulting in a total effective duty rate of 15 per cent. Similarly, coins of precious metals will also now attract a 15 per cent duty as against 11 per cent earlier.

The import duty on spent catalyst and ash containing precious metals has also been hiked to 14.35 per cent (including 10 per cent BCD and 4.35 percent AIDC) from 10.09 per cent earlier (9.17 per cent BCD and 0.92 per cent SWS).

Why the hike on certain items of gold, silver?

The hike in import duty has been done to bring in uniformity for import duty rates for all categories of gold and silver and precious metals as people were misusing the tax arbitrage to import gold/silver in different forms which faced lower duty than gold/silver bars.

The government took note of a surge in imports of gold findings in the last two months to hike the import duty.

Govt permits direct listing on GIFT-IFSC's global exchanges

SUKALP SHARMA
NEW DELHI, JANUARY 24

THE GOVERNMENT on Wednesday allowed direct listing of securities by public Indian companies on the international exchanges of GIFT International Financial Services Centre (GIFT-IFSC), and made the requisite provisions to provide "an overarching regulatory framework" to facilitate it. In July, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman announced that the government had decided to enable direct listing of listed and unlisted companies on the IFSC exchanges. The move is expected to give Indian companies access to cheaper foreign capital, boost foreign investment, and broaden investor.

The Department of Economic Affairs of the Finance Ministry has amended Foreign Exchange Management (Non-debt Instruments) Rules, 2019, and notified the Direct Listing of Equity Shares of Companies

"These, together, provide an overarching regulatory framework to enable public Indian companies to issue and list their shares in permitted international exchanges. As of now, the framework allows unlisted public Indian companies to list their shares on an international exchange. SEBI (Securities and Exchange Board of India) is in the process of issuing the operational guidelines for listed public Indian companies," the Finance Ministry said in a statement.

The international stock exchanges at GIFT-IFSC—India International Exchange and NSE International Exchange—are currently prescribed as the permitted stock exchanges. These exchanges are under the regulatory supervision of the International Financial Services Centres Authority (IFSCA). GIFT-IFSC is India's first international financial services centre set up with the objective of connecting India with global opportunities while helping the Indian economy connect with the global financial system and facilitating seamless flow of global capital into India.

"This policy initiative...will reshape the Indian capital market landscape and offers Indian companies, especially start-ups and companies in the sunrise and technology sectors, an alternative avenue to access global capital beyond the domestic exchanges. This is expected to lead to better valuation of Indian companies in line with global standards of scale and performance, boost foreign investment flows, unlock growth opportunities and broaden the investor base," the Finance Ministry said.

WHY TURKEY HAS FINALLY BACKED SWEDEN'S NATO MEMBERSHIP BID

SWEDEN'S ATTEMPT to join NATO cleared a major hurdle Tuesday after Turkey's parliament supported its membership. For a new country to join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), all existing members have to approve it. Turkey and Hungary had been opposing Sweden's entry for almost the past two years.

Why does Sweden want to join NATO?

Sweden has not fought a war in two centuries, preferring to remain neutral. However, this neutrality had to be abandoned after Russia invaded Ukraine, and both Sweden and Finland applied for NATO membership in 2022.

Once a country is a NATO member, an attack on its territory is considered an attack on the US-led alliance.

While Finland's bid was cleared, Sweden ran into stiff opposition from Turkey's President Recep Tayyip Erdogan and Hungary's Prime Minister Viktor Orban.

Why did Turkey change its mind?

Turkey had accused Sweden of going soft on groups it sees as terrorists, such as the Kurdish militant outfit the Kurdistan Workers' Party (PKK). Quran-burning protests in Sweden, which its government says are protected under freedom of speech laws, further soured its relationship with Turkey.

When Turkish legislators cleared Sweden's bid, Fuat Oktay, a senior member of Erdogan's party, told parliament that Sweden had tightened its anti-terrorism laws, cracked down on the PKK's activities, and lifted restrictions on arms sales to Turkey, AP reported. Sweden has also said it will support Turkey's EU membership bid.

Erdogan had also linked Turkey's support to Sweden with the US agreeing to sell 40 F-16 fighter jets to Ankara. While the US had not said the deal would depend on Turkey's Sweden actions, the sale is expected to go through now.

What will Sweden bring to NATO?

Once Sweden becomes a member, almost all of the Baltic Sea coastline, except that in Russia's control, will become NATO territory. This will provide the alliance strategic bases close to Russia, and make it easier to defend assets in the sea. Sweden's military, though numerically small, is modern and experienced in past NATO missions. It has advanced aircraft and submarine capabilities.

AMRITA NAYAK DUTTA
NEW DELHI, JANUARY 24

THE ARMY has launched Operation Sarvashakti in the Rajouri-Poonch sector of Jammu and Kashmir, deploying forces on both sides of the Pir Panjal range to target terrorists who have carried out a series of attacks on troops in the area.

There were three major attacks on the security forces in 2023, and over the past few years, 20 soldiers have been killed in terrorist ambushes in this area. Most terrorists here are believed to be foreigners.

Operation Sarvashakti, as part of which at least three brigades of additional troops are being deployed in the sector from various reserve and strike corps formations in order to increase the density of troops and, therefore, the likelihood of contact with terrorists, recalls an earlier operation by the Army in the same forests more than two decades ago.

Back in 2003, Indian forces launched Operation Sarvashakti to flush out terrorists who had infiltrated from across the border and set up camps in the thick forests south of the Pir Panjal range, especially in the Hilkaka area in Poonch.

What was Operation Sarvashakti?

Following several encounters in the area, the Army carried out, from April 2003 onward, what was until then its biggest counter-insurgency operation in Jammu and Kashmir. The roughly three-month-long operation took place in high forested mountains, in an approximately 150 sq km area bound by three major ridges. Some 10,000 troops under the 15 Corps and 16 Corps were involved in the operation.

Mi-17 helicopters were used to airlift soldiers to Hilkaka, a Bakerwal village that had been taken over by terrorists, and Lancer attack helicopters were used to bust concrete bunkers built by the infiltrators, The Indian Express reported earlier.

About 100 terrorists were killed in the operation. A large number of weapons of various kinds, dumps of explosives, and stores including some 7,000 kg of ration, medicines, and communication equipment were recovered. Some 40-50 terrorist hideouts were demolished in the operation.

Under what circumstances was Sarvashakti launched?

The Kargil war of 1999 was still fresh in memory and, in the aftermath of the December 13, 2001 terrorist attack on Parliament, the Indian armed forces had carried out Operation Parakram, a massive mobilisation exercise on the border with Pakistan that lasted well into the summer of 2002.

Preparations for the assault began in early 2003 after inputs suggested that more than 300 foreign terrorists who had infiltrated across the Line of Control (LoC) had established secure camps in the areas of Surankote and Hilkaka. The terrorists, who belonged to several Pakistan-based outfits, had created a demilitarised zone in the region, and were dominating the area.

They had created multiple hideouts inside caves, built bunkers in the dhokas (shelters for humans and cattle) of the migrant Bakerwals, and established a communication network.

Why is this area important strategically?

The areas south of Mendhar leading to the Pir Panjal range through Hilkaka constitute among the shortest routes of access for infiltrators from across the LoC into the

Watching the Budget

Several upcoming national and international events will provide an understanding of where the Indian economy stands, and where it is headed. The Interim Budget is the most important among them

UDIT MISRA
NEW DELHI, JANUARY 24

THE COMING fortnight will witness some of the most important events in the economic calendar for the year.

Here's what lies ahead.

On January 30, the International Monetary Fund will release the latest update of its World Economic Outlook. At the end of 2022, there was near consensus that the world economy was headed into a recession in 2023, but the January 2023 update suggested that most economies might dodge that bullet. Many think the danger has not passed – indeed, Germany has just escaped a technical recession narrowly.

On January 31, India's Chief Economic Advisor will present the Economic Survey for the current financial year. The Survey is seen as presenting the government's detailed reading of the state of the economy.

Over January 30-31, the Federal Open Market Committee of the US Federal Reserve will meet to deliberate its policy stance. The decisions of the Fed have global ramifications because central banks of other countries hold US dollars like they hold gold – as an asset.

January 31 will also see the latest update of the Union government's financial accounts. This data, provided by the Controller General of Accounts, comes with a month's lag. It shows, for instance, the actual level of fiscal deficit (the proxy for the amount of money the government borrowed to meet the gap between what it earns and what it spends).

On February 1, the Finance Minister will present the (interim) Union Budget for the coming financial year (2024-25). The full Budget for FY25 will most likely be presented in July after the new cabinet has taken charge.

On February 8, the RBI will reveal its latest monetary policy stance. The RBI's stance determines your home and car loan EMIs.

What a Budget does

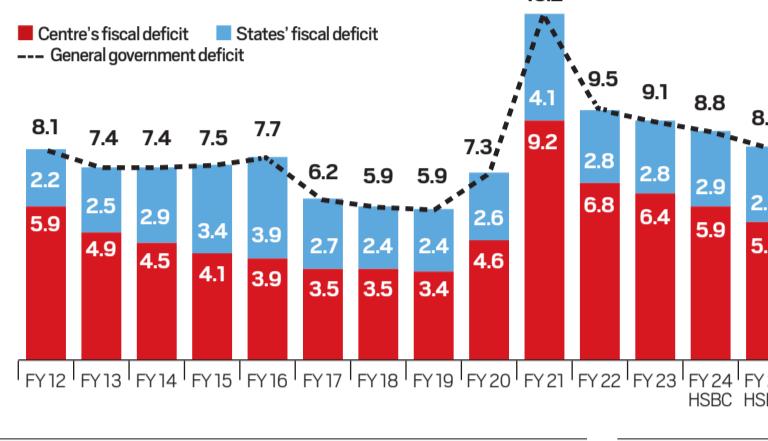

The Budget is a statement of the government's finances in the current and forthcoming year. It shows (i) how much the government earned (and from where) in the current year and, (ii) how much it spent (and on what).

These are called the Revised Estimates (of FY24 in this case), and are read in comparison to the Budget Estimates that were provided in the previous year.

The Budget also projects what the government expects on both these counts in the forthcoming year. These become the Budget Estimates (of FY25 in this case).

The gap between the two variables is typi-

CHART 1: INDIA'S FISCAL PATH (%GDP)

ically negative in India, i.e., the government's spending is more than its income – and provides the Fiscal Deficit. This is typically expressed as a percentage of the GDP.

A high fiscal deficit results in two problems.

One, there is very little investible money left for the private sector (everyone barring the government) to borrow. Less money relative to the borrowers implies that borrowing costs (read interest rates) will rise, and you will pay higher EMIs. If the government tries to get around this problem by printing fresh currency notes, it would lead to inflation (a rise in the general price level). Either way, the common man is hit the hardest.

Two, each year's fiscal deficit adds to the overall government debt. If a government continues to spend on borrowed money, repaying the debt and associated annual interest will become a problem over time. Retiring old debt typically takes the shape of higher taxes, which drag down economic activities – be it consumption or production.

What to watch on February 1

The Budget Estimates for the forthcoming year often get more attention than the Revised Estimates of the current year. This is wrong – and given that this will be an interim Budget, the Revised Estimates of the current year will be even more important. This is because:

The data on the current year bookends the 10 years of the Narendra Modi government. This time frame also allows for a comparison between the BJP-led governments (2014-24) and the Congress-led ones (2004-14) in terms of fiscal health and budgetary priorities.

Data for the coming year will likely see a revision by the time the full Budget is presented in July. In 2019, the last time a full Budget was presented mid-year, it was widely expected that the Indian economy would not grow at more than 5% in 2019-20. The July Budget (the first one by Nirmala Sitharaman) did not reflect this sentiment – it projected a real GDP growth rate of 8% – but the actual data (a GDP growth rate of less than 4%) underscored the need for revisions.

Looking at 2023-24...

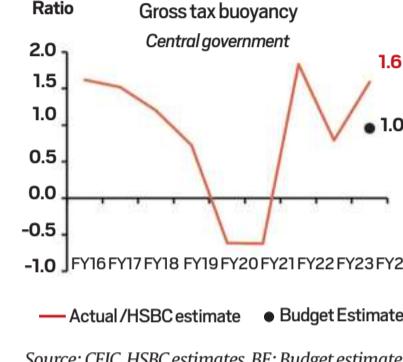

Most analysts expect the government to achieve its Budget Estimate of 5.9% (of GDP) in the current financial year (2023-24). Chart 1, taken from a recent research note by Pranjal Bhandari, Chief Economist, India and Indonesia, The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, and her team, shows the fiscal deficit data for the Union government and the states. Most analysts see the Union government achieving the target for the current year, while pegging the target to 5.3% for the next financial year.

For perspective, the Fiscal Responsibility and Budget Management (FRBM) Act sets a limit of 3% of GDP for fiscal deficit. The Covid-19 pandemic forced governments around the world to spend more, but the chart shows that the Modi government has never met the prudential norms of fiscal health.

The government has managed to beat last year's Budget Estimates of income generation to achieve the fiscal deficit target.

"Gross tax revenue buoyancy is likely to come in at 1.6 in FY24 versus a budget estimate of 1.0 (Chart 2). The reason for this is a rapid rise in income tax (29% y-o-y), corporate tax (20%), and GST revenues (10%). On a net basis, tax revenues are 0.4% of GDP higher than budgeted," the HSBC note says.

CHART 2: TAX REVENUE BUOYANCY LIKELY TO TOP BUDGET EXPECTATIONS

Source: CEIC, HSBC estimates, BE; Budget estimates

The tax buoyancy ratio shows how a government's tax revenues respond to GDP growth. From the perspective of an individual taxpayer, the salience of a higher tax buoyancy ratio means the government can raise higher revenues without raising tax rates.

...And at 2024-25

From the macroeconomic perspective, there are four main concerns.

How to boost consumption levels of the average Indian? The aggregate of the money spent by all Indians in their personal capacity accounts for almost 60% of India's annual GDP. Data show that a large part of the population continues to hold back spending, which drags down economic growth.

How to incentivise investments by private sector firms? Tepid growth in consumption levels typically means that the private sector refrains from spending to create fresh capacities. Such investment-related spending accounts for more than 30% of India's GDP. The government has been investing – but there are limits to how long it can keep doing so by borrowing money.

How to reduce fiscal deficits? Sustained periods of fiscal profligacy can often be akin to a cure that is worse than the disease.

How to contain inflation? Central banks contain inflation by raising interest rates and reducing demand for goods and services. But events of the past five years have shown that inflation can go up because of supply mismatches. Central banks don't have any answers for "cost-push" inflation, and it is governments that must act – either by reducing taxes or through better management of existing supply.

What are the issues that SC will consider?

The court will decide if the notification expanding the jurisdiction of the BSF was arbitrary or backed by legitimate reasons. It will also determine if the notification interferes with the powers of the local police and encroaches upon states' powers.

The court will determine what factors should be considered when deciding which areas are "within the local limits of such area adjoining the borders of India" and whether all states must be treated alike when determining these local limits.

Finally, the court will decide if the notification can be challenged through an original suit under Article 131 of the Constitution.
